I didn't have a low-fi sketch of my shopping cart page originally, so I quickly sketched one up. I wanted the right side overview of items in the shopping cart to stay fixed on the page while you scroll, while you see the items on the left side. The main things I changed was how I added a number counter next to the shopping cart, and made the glazing change a dropdown instead of a "Change" button. I feel like this could work better as an easier way to change your order straight from the cart page.
