High-fidelity:

After I made that low-fi sketch, I also edited my high-fi sketch from a previous homework. Notable differences were the addition of a count next to the cart symbol, and the change of the number and glazing displays for each bun to dropdowns. I feel like this change will be more coherent with the item browsing page ("our buns") in the look of the dropdown, and will make it easier for customers to change their selection. Finally, I also added an "x" to each item in the cart, because I realized that originally there was no easy way to remove items from the cart.